The Thorax Center is one of the clinical departments of the University Medical Center Groningen (UMCG) in the Netherlands and comprises two subdepartments: Cardiothoracic Surgery and Cardiology. The department of Extracorporeal Circulation (ECC) forms part of the Cardiothoracic Surgery department.

The department of Extracorporeal Circulation is currently being expanded. In addition to classic clinical care, new applications for extracorporeal circulation are being assessed and introduced to the clinic. Procedures like ECLS and ECMO have already found their way into regular care. At this moment in time, the programme is being introduced in the children's clinic. Another area waiting for development is the application of autologous blood products (PPP and PRP). In addition, multidisciplinary research is conducted in the field of transplantation medicine.

Please use our digital application form at the foot of the vacancy on our website: www.werken.umcg.nl (Paramedical staff). Only these will be processed. You can apply until 12 March 2012.
